Overview

Mardi Himal Trek is a newly explored trip in the Annapurna region. The trek route captures what Nepal offers- rural villages, incredible terrain, mind-blowing snow-capped mountains, and the changing flora and fauna ultimately taking you to Mardi Himal Base Camp (4,500m / 14,763ft).

From the trek route, you get up-close views of Annapurna South, Mount Machhapuchre, and Mount Hiunchuli. In a way, this is an alternative trek to the classical Annapurna Base Camp trek. However, this trek takes us to Mardi Himal Base Camp, and this mountain opened for trekking in 2012.

Though the Mardi Himal at 5,587m (18,330 ft) is a modest peak compared to Annapurna I at 8,091m, or Dhaulagiri at 8,167m, it has a charm that few other mountain ranges carry. Mardi Himal is one of the least climbed and visited peaks in Nepal.

This is a short trek suitable for first-timers as well as experienced trekkers. Mardi Himal lies opposite Annapurna I and Macchapuchre.

Your trip starts with a six-hour drive from Kathmandu to Pokhara. The following morning we will take a drive from Pokhara to Dhampus, and we start on the trekking trails from Dhampus. The destination for this day will be Deurali, but before reaching Deurali, you will be passing through many small ethnic villages.

On the third day, we wake up at Deurali and walk past a thick forest full of rhododendron, birch, oak, maple, hemlock, and daphnia towards Forest Camp. The forest also hosts leopards, deer, monkeys, and different bird species. When you arrive at Forest Camp, you will catch fantastic views of Mt. Machapuchre and Mardi Himal.

The following morning we leave Forest Camp to reach High Camp. The trails are very steep, and as you hike, the path gets narrower and more challenging. On your left, you can see the Modi Khola River valley, on your right, you can see Mardi Khola and Seti River valleys. On clear days, you might even see Pokhara from the trails. After reaching High Camp (3,900m), we will stop at a lodge for the night.

You will reach the Mardi Himal Base Camp on your fifth trek day. But you will be starting your day at High Camp, and climbing up until you reach Mardi Himal Base Camp at 5,300m. From the Mardi Himal Base Camp, you can enjoy spectacular views of the Annapurna range. After enjoying the views from the base camp, we will be descending to Low Camp (3,050m). The trek is easier, as we will be descending.

From Low Camp, we will start our trek to Jhinu Danda. The trek will be entertaining and pass through a beautiful Gurung settlement - Landruk. There are natural hot springs near Jhinu Danda, and we will not forget to take a dip in those hot springs.

The next morning, we will wake up at Jhinu Danda, trek to Siwa / Ghardruk Phedi, and then drive to Pokhara via Nayapul. We expect that you will really enjoy this trek in the Annapurna region. Your trek package ends at Pokhara.

Best season to visit Mardi Himal

The weather is a crucial factor when deciding to trek to Mardi Himal. People trek to the Mardi Himal throughout the year, but certainly, there are ups and downs based on seasons.

The trails are easier, along with clear mountain views during spring and autumn. The magical clear azure skies provide the most spectacular vistas. During winter and summer, the treks get a bit challenging. In winter, trek regions get cold and may receive snow, while summer coincides with the monsoon that makes the trails wet and slippery.

March-May (Spring)

During spring, mountain lovers and travel enthusiasts trek to Mardi Himal in large numbers as the temperature is mild, the rainfall is quite low, and the trekking conditions are perfect. The mean daily temperature in the higher elevations of the Mardi Himal trek region is between 5°C to 0°C. Lower regions are even warmer.

The trekking season begins after March in the spring. By April, the rhododendron flowers bloom adding red, pink, and white colors to the forests. The temperature starts rising from mid-March up to mid-May. During this time, the sky is clear, and you can enjoy the unobstructed mountain views.

June - August (Summer)

Summer is the hottest season, and therefore the temperatures are higher. However, summer coincides with the monsoon in Nepal, making the trails wet and slippery.

Monsoon generally begins around the end of June and continues up to the second week of August. The daily temperatures at high elevations range from 15°C to 25°C. The night temperatures are colder at 5°C to 10°C. Mornings are usually clear, with clouds building up during the afternoon and disappearing at night. Though the rain may cause some problems, various plants bloom during this season, providing a green look to the trekking regions.

September - November (Autumn)

Autumn is a perfect season for Mardi Trek due to moderate temperatures, mild wind, and low precipitation. The sun shines brightly, the skies are clear, you get a superb view of the mountains, and the temperature is perfect for the trek.

Moreover, you can also enjoy spectacular starry skies. The monsoons will be over by early September. Daytime temperatures can reach up to 20°C in high altitudes, the nights are colder at around 5°C. In this season, the greens that grew during the monsoon fade to golden/amber providing a spectacular contrast against the crystal blue skies.

This is also a season to harvest ripening grains in terrace farms. The environment is clean, and the lowlands are lush. Nepal's biggest festivals - Dashain & Tihar also fall during this season, adding a festive mood to the whole environment. If you are looking for an easy trek, this season can be your choice.

December - February (Winter)

Winter (December - February) treks in the Annapurna region are less popular. The places along the Mardi Himal trek can be cold during the winter, but it excites some trekkers. The winter temperatures at higher trek elevations of the Mardi Himal trek can be as low as -10 °C, but this tempts adventurous trekkers.

The coldest period starts in December and continues through early February. After late February, the climate gradually gets warmer. Despite being cold, winter skies are usually quite clear, and mountain views with snowy caps look stunning. However, it snows in winter, making your trek more challenging. On the positive side, the trails are the least busy in winter. Winter treks might not suit trek beginners, but experienced trekkers will have no problem completing this trek during winter.

Physical Condition & Experience Requirements

The Mardi Himal trip is a moderate-grade trek that takes you to Mardi Himal Base Camp at 4,500m. You will be hiking for about 4 to 7 hours, with regular breaks to appreciate the stunning mountain views and click pictures.

The routes involve long ascents, steep descents, and straightforward paths. We will be trekking short distances in high elevations and more in low lands. You do not need any technical skills or experience to complete this trek.

Exercising and jogging regularly for a couple of weeks before the trip is a good idea as it enhances your stamina. The fitter you are, the more enjoyable your trek experience will be.

Trekkers need to be in good health with normal physical fitness, a positive attitude, and a strong determination to complete the trek. Participants with pre-existing medical conditions such as heart, lung, and blood diseases should inform us before booking the trek.

Trekking in Group / Single

We organize a group as well as a private trek. The bigger your team size is, the more discount you will get. However, you are not eligible for any discounts for groups our company assembles. We can handle all team sizes. Each trek team will consist of a trekking guide and porters as necessary. We will assign one extra assistant guide for a group of 12 or more.

A typical day in Mardi Himal Hike

Each day during the Mardi Himal Hike, you will get new places to explore, enjoy the natural beauty, take pictures, and interact with locals. Our qualified expert guide/Sherpa will inform you about the places you will be visiting. We will assign a porter for every two trekkers to carry your luggage. However, we expect you to carry a small backpack to ensure that your valuables and essential documents are safe.

The day starts with an early morning cup of tea. After breakfast and according to the nature of the trek, we will be on the trails by 7 or 8 am. After trekking for two or three hours, we will stop to have lunch and rest for an hour. After the rest, we continue on our trek until we reach the destination for that day. Before it gets dark, you will have time to explore that day's destination.

We will have dinner at around six or seven. After dinner, it is time for socializing, and your trek leader will also brief you about the next day's plan. Before going to bed, you can read books, watch mountaineering videos, and play cards, or Monopoly. Most of our guests learn common Nepali words from our crew.

Communication during the trek

During the Mardi Trek, you can use the internet at lodges/tea houses for an extra charge. At high elevations, we will be using our mobiles. The Discovery World Trekking office will be in contact with all the trek teams, at least once a day, via the trek leader. Depending on the kind of network you use, you might get signals, but they may not be strong enough. If you want, you can buy a local sim in Kathmandu.

Wi-Fi is available at trek lodges, but you need to pay a service charge.

Electricity & water on trek regions

Electricity for the camera and mobile battery recharge is available at all the lodges we will be staying in. You can either buy packed mineral water from local lodges and en-route shops or fill your water bottle with boiled water for an extra cost. We will also provide you with water purification pills to make water drinkable.

We advise you not to drink water from the rivers, taps, and wells in the trekking region because the water may not be drinkable.

Extra personal expenses during the trek

This package does not cover all the trip costs. We expect trekkers to bring spending money for expenses - including visa application, travel insurance policy purchase, alcoholic drinks, hot (tea, coffee) drinks, cold drinks, snacks, tips for the crew, souvenirs, hot shower, mobile and battery recharge, mineral water, etc. We recommend bringing cash (major currencies), which you can exchange for Rupees in Kathmandu, or you can bring a credit/debit card and withdraw money (Nepali Rupees) from ATMs.

Travel insurance for Mardi Trek

Mardi Trek grade is ranked moderate with a very low risk of altitude sickness. However, the trek might face unforeseen or unexpected events such as injury, illness, flood, landslide, or sudden climate changes. Hence, travel insurance is compulsory for Mardi Trek. All trekkers must provide a copy of their travel insurance policy certificate to Discovery World Trekking. The policy must cover medical and emergency repatriation, including helicopter rescue and evacuation expenses at high altitudes.

We can recommend insurance companies to help you based on our client's experience, but our company does not sell insurance.

We request you send your detailed insurance information after booking the trek. In emergencies, we will be using your insurance policy for fast rescue.

Before you buy travel insurance, make sure to call the insurance company and recheck if they have helicopter rescue and evacuation up to 4,500m. Do not rely on what the company says on its website.

Visa Information

All foreigners except Indians need a valid visa to enter Nepal. You can get an on-arrival visa at Tribhuvan International Airport upon entry in Kathmandu or at entry and exit points established at the border regions. Visa regulations might change without notice so you can get the latest visa regulations at www.immigration.gov.np

For a visa application, you need a passport that is valid for at least six months, a passport-size photo, and a visa application fee. The current cost for a 30-day visa is USD 50 (to be paid in cash/dollar).

Children under the age of 10 will get a free visa.

Chinese and South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC) countries (Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka) citizens get free visas.

On-arrival visas might not be available for citizens from Nigeria, Ghana, Zimbabwe, Swaziland, Cameroon, Somalia, Liberia, Ethiopia, Iraq, Palestine, and Afghanistan. If you are a citizen of these countries, contact your local Nepalese embassy.

Money exchange in Nepal

Nepali Rupees (NPR/Rs) is the local currency.

(1 USD = ~ Rs.130 NPR).

You can exchange major foreign currencies through local banks and legitimate money exchanges in Kathmandu and all over Thamel. Legal money exchanges display their exchange rates visibly. Please remember that only INR 100 and INR 2000 notes are legal in Nepal.

Despite security advantages, we encourage you to bring cash instead of traveler's cheques to avoid lengthy bank processes and high commissions. You can also use your international card and withdraw cash in Rupees from ATMs all over Kathmandu. Many of these ATMs are open throughout the clock. The maximum withdrawal amount is 35,000 Rupees for a 500 Rupees processing fee for a foreign card.

If you use the money exchange facility at banks and financial institutions, they will charge you a service fee of four percent or more.

Most banks in Asia will not accept old, torn, or faded foreign currency notes, so please bring new, crisp notes.

How much luggage can I take to Mardi Trek?

The weight limit per trekker is 9 kg. For every two trekkers, we will assign a porter, who will not carry more than 18 kg. You can leave any excess baggage either at your hotel or at the Discovery World Trekking store for free.

We will recheck your luggage, equipment, and gear before trip departure to ensure that you have all essentials.

Mardi Trek Safety

We guarantee the safety and security of our clients and prepare ourselves to face any situation. Our team will be carrying the necessary gear, equipment, and first aid kits.

Our trek leaders have taken extensive first-aid training.
